Former CIA Member Sets Freedom Talk

ANAHEIM — Retired Navy Capt. Robert A. Winston, a former staff member, of the Central Intelligence Agency is slated to address the first annual meeting of the Orange County Freedom Forum at 8 p.m., Thursday, April 12 in the Disneyland Hotel's new Convention Hall.

The author of seven books, Capt. Winston is perhaps best known for his book, "The Pentagon Case," which he wrote using the pen name, "Col. Victor J. Fox."

A controversial figure, he has been the object of attacks by official communist publications, by so-called left-wing columnists and by unnamed Pentagon "spokesmen," for his writings.

Capt. Winston is a retired U.S. Naval aviator and World War II "ace."

The Freedom Forum meeting is open to the public.

The evening program will include the presentation of an annual financial audit and a discussion of future projects.

A spokesman for the group anticipated a capacity audience for the new 1200-seat convention hall. He advised early reservations, directing them to TR 1-7000, or any one of the Freedom Forum book stores.
